SHOOTING AN EAGLE.-As Mr. John F. Carpenter, station agent at Ashton, R. I., was out duck-hunting near there one forenoon between 11 and 12 o'clock, he saw a very large bird flying over the tree-tops, he judged about two hundred yards high. Without thinking of hitting it at that height, he drew a beid on it and pulled the trigger. To his surprise the bird dropped. He ran to pick it up, and found it lying on its back alive, and with bill and talons open, as if ready for a fight. In his excitement Mr. Carpenter did not stop to consider the consequences, but attempted to take it by the feet, when the bird fastened its claws into his hands, and he was im-prisoned by a wounded black American eagle. There was a severe tussle for a few moments, but the man finally conquered, though his hands were very badly scratched in the fight, and the eagle was taken to the station and secured. Examination disclosed the fact that his wings were injured, but it is thought they are not broken, and that his majesty will live. If he does live, it is Mr. Carpenter's intention to present it to Roger Williams Park, of Providence, as a "Centennial Black Ameri-can Eagle." He measures five feet five inches from tip to tip of its wings, and is thought to be about two years old. Mr Carpenter has already refused $100 for him he is. The gun was of German make, No. 10 gauge, with No. 2 shots for ducks. He says that in all his experience in hunting he never saw game shot at so long a range. His hands are in bad shape; and he doesn't hanker for another skirmish with an American eagle, even though he be a wounded one.

A MATRIMONIAL BROKER'S SUIT .- The Indianapolis Journal says:

"A case was tried in a justice's court at South Bend a few days ago which has some rather novel aspects and involves some new principles of law. The plaintiff and defendant were both Germans, but we will call them A and B. A few months since B, the defendant, being a widower, expressed a desire to get married, as widowers have been known to do before. A, the plaintiff, so far sympathized with this laudable purpose as to propose to aid him in the matter, and proposed a function with a certain young woman. This suited B exactly, and he accepted the proflered service. The young woman, however, proved to be intractable, as young women sometimes are, and the contract and negotiations were transferred to a widow whem the defendant expressed a perfect willingness to accept in lieu of Positively refuse to Execute, any more New anything better. The two were introduced, and after some brief unimportant preliminaries were married. The match, however, did not prove to have been made in heaven. After a month of wedded bliss they separated, and B drove his wife back to her old home in his wagon like a good husband. But right then and there, and while his late spouse was in the very act of disembarking, his horses and wagon were levied upon in making the match. The case was tried has apparently been buried for some time, warranted the marriage to be happy. B that the owner has taken a portion of the admitted the services, but denied that he stone to Chicago for sale there. had promised to pay anything for them. The jury heard the evidence, and after being out about an hour gave the plaintiff a verdict for nine dollars."

Associated with these were stone implements, polished rings and bracelets of the same material, and three fine vessels in the shape of urns, with mammilated handles, and designs on the outside.

Papers with "patent outsides" have been declared by courts, both in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, to be not proper mediums for the publication of legal advertisements, inasmuch as they are not printed "in the county" in which the interests affected by such advertising exist. When the State of New York a few years ago issued an election notice containing the proposed constitutional amendments, and amounting at legal rates to several hundred dollars, new papers with these outsides were started in almost every town, the law requiring the publication of the notice three months in ristown Herald. ral issues continued about three months, pocketed their fee, and subsided, having cost their proprietors little more than the price of the white paper upon which they were printed.

N THE CITY OF MANCHESTER, VA., TO BE OLU BY AUCTION ON FRIDAY THE 27TH
NAY OF OCTOBER, 1876, AT 12 O'CLOCK M.— On the day and at the hour named, we shall sell by auction, to the highest bidder, upon the premises, in the city of Manchester, opposite to the city of Richmond, Va., the large BRICK COTTON-MILL and MACHINERY belonging to the "Manchester Cotton-Mills," on James river. The mill contains about 8,000 spindles, and other machinery in proportion, and has a perpetual lease of water-power to run; at least 12,000 spindles. The largest part of the machinery has been recently purchased, and is of the most modern and approved style.

The cities of Richmond and Manchester, two growing places, afford a market on the spot for almost the entire manufactured products of the mill.

Eighteen TENEMENT HOUSES in Manchester, occupied by the operatives, and a number of BUILD-ING LOTS, will also then be sold at auction.

TERMS: For the mill and machinery, $5,000 in cash; the residue in equal payments at six, twelve, eighteen, and twenty-four mouths. For the tenements and lots, one fourth cash; residue at four, eight, and twelve months, purchases to execute for the deferred payments negotiable notes with interest added from the day of sale, satisfactorily endorsed, and further secured by deeds of trust.
